

AIR CRASH

Air crash is an interactive and immersive event where participants take on the role of real-life personalities, each with their own unique characteristics and traits. The event is set in a fictional scenario where a plane is crashing and there is only one parachute left. The objective of the event is for each participant to convince the pilots to give them the last parachute, in order to save their own lives.

The event is designed to challenge participants to think critically and creatively, as they must use the personality traits of their assigned character to make a convincing argument. They must also be able to think on their feet and adapt to the changing circumstances of the event. Additionally, the event aims to develop participants' communication skills, as they will have to present their arguments in a clear and persuasive manner.

The event also aims to provide a fun and engaging learning experience, as participants will have the opportunity to step into the shoes of real-life personalities and gain a deeper understanding of their characteristics and behavior. The event will be judged by panel of experts who will evaluate the participant's performance and give the score

Rules:

- 40 seconds is given to the participant to introduce the character to the judges and audience.
- Then it's 2 mins max per person for the first round to talk about yourself. First round you'll have to talk about why you'd deserve the parachute as in what makes you the better person etc
- Then max 90s per person to talk about the others. Second round you'll have to talk about why the others don't deserve the parachute (roast them basically)
- Stay in the character that you are assigned at all times.
- Any sort of vulgarity or vulgar words used will lead to straight disqualification.
- Stick to attacking the character not the person
- The judge's decisions will be the final ones.

Further Instructions:

- Participants will be assigned a real-life personality during the event, and must research and familiarize themselves with the characteristics and traits of their assigned character.
- Participants must use the personality traits of their assigned character to make a convincing argument to the pilots for why they should be given the last parachute.
- Participants must not use any props or outside materials during the event.
- Participants must stay in character throughout the event and must not break character at any time.
- Participants must adhere to the time limit set for their argument and must not exceed it.
- Participants must be respectful and professional in their interactions with other participants and event staff.
- Participants should be aware of the surroundings and should not cause any disturbance to the other participants and event staff.
- The event will be judged by panel of experts who will evaluate the participant's performance based on their acting skills, critical thinking, creativity, communication, and adapting to the changing circumstances.
- The participant with the highest score will be declared as the winner.
- The event organizer's decision will be final and binding.
